We need instant and plentiful aid. From 12,000 to 15,000 people at least, in the State of Michigan have lost their homes, clothing, crops, horses and cattle. On the night of the Chicago fire 2,000 people on the east shore of Lake Michigan, and 5,000 or 0,000 on the west shore of Lake Huron, were reduced to almost absolute destitution. Within two or three weeks other and smaller villages and settle-ments have been blotted out. The number of individuals, farm houses, barns and fron-tier dwellings which have been destroyed by the all pervading fire cannot, from want of information, be accurately calculated. The aggregate we know to be enormous. The fires are still burning and new ones springing up. The area of the ruin and devastation is daily increasing. The intensity and dramatic magnificence of the calamities which have overwhelmed other cities and villages are lacking here, but the suffering exists.
